

8 Ways To Fund Your Training

Review your options and realize your opportunities.

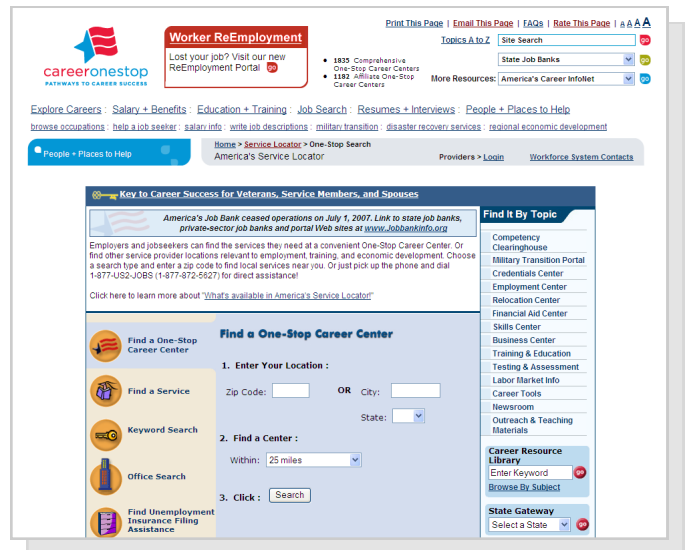

Studies consistently show that education and specialized skills translate into higher salaries, increased job security, and career flexibility. Whether you're looking to safeguard your career, seeking a promotion, or wanting to break into the payroll field, education from a respected source like APA can open a variety of doors, regardless of the economic climate.

APA wants to help you find ways to make this important investment with these top ways to pay for training.

1 Take Advantage of New Money Coming into Your State

Because of historically high unemployment rates, some states are dedicating dollars to help fund training so people can acquire new skills and get back to work.

If you are unemployed, contact your local One-Stop Career Center or Workforce Center for more information on how to access funds that could help pay for your training. Go to this website: www.servicelocator.org/.

2 Look into APA, KRONOS, and Global Cash Card Payroll Scholarships

APA, KRONOS, and Global Cash Card award education scholarships every year. Click here for more information or visit <http://www.americanpayroll.org/members/edgrant/>

3 Contact the Financial Aid Office

The financial aid office at the school, university or institution where you are interested in training may have specific programs that meet your needs and can help cover training costs.

4 Tap into Tuition Reimbursement

If you are ready to secure your future through training, your employer can help. If your company offers tuition reimbursement, you can expand your payroll knowledge, skills, and credentials at no cost to you!

APA has partnered with accredited colleges and universities across the country to offer live, instructor-led courses that qualify for most tuition reimbursement programs. Enroll in a course near you and tap into the pool of tuition reimbursement funds available at your company.

6 Corporate Training Budgets at Your Company

Many companies have budgets set aside for corporate training programs that are different from tuition reimbursement funds. Corporate training budgets may be available to cover your training depending on who manages this budget at your company and how much of it is currently being used.

7 For the Military

- For veterans, their spouses, and dependents check into the GI Bill. Click here for more information. Or visit www.gibill.va.gov/.
- For active duty military, look into DANTES. Click here or visit www.dantes.doded.mil/Dantes\_web/DANTESHOME.asp.

8 Tax Credits for Education

- Hope credit
- American Opportunity Credit
- Lifetime Learning Tax Credit

You may be eligible for one of these tax credits. In some cases, you don't need to be pursuing a degree or other recognized education credential.
