Q. What is the CPP exam registration process?

A. Follow these steps:

Step 1: Complete and submit the CPP Examination Application

Step 2: Receive confirmation of your approved application

Step 3: Pay the examination fee to receive a paid exam authorization when the exam registration window opens

Step 4: Schedule your exam when the exam registration window opens

Step 5: Take the CPP exam on the date, time, and location of your scheduled appointment

Q: How do I submit a CPP Examination Application?

A: Download the CPP Examination Application. You must fill out all the information and sign before submitting using the Submit button at the top of the page or email to certification@americanpayroll.org

* Please note: By signing the application, you acknowledge you have read the CPP Exam Candidate Handbook.

Q: Will I get an email once my exam application is approved?

A: Once APA's Certification Department has approved your application submission, you will receive an email to the email address provided confirming that your application has been approved. This email will also include instructions on how you may pay for the exam if you have not previously done so. Once your exam payment is received by APA, you will receive an email with your exam authorization.

You can log into the Certification Dashboard to view exam payment confirmation and exam application approval emails in My APA emails.

*Please note: You should check spam/junk email folders and add certification@americanpayroll.org to your safelist to be sure you receive all important communication regarding your exam.

Q: What is the expected response time for me to receive approval?

A: Allow up to 10 business days for the APA Certification department to process your exam application.

Q: Who do I contact if I have not heard from APA Certification department regarding my application status?

A: Check with APA's Certification Department by emailing certification@americanpayroll.org.

Q: How do I schedule my exam?

A: You must have a paid exam authorization from the APA to schedule the exam. Once the exam registration opens, you can schedule the CPP exam by logging into your Certification Dashboard.

Q: How do I pay the examination fees?

A: Once your application is approved, you can pay for your CPP exam through the APA store when the exam registration opens. You must pay for your exam before receiving a paid exam authorization, which will allow you to schedule your exam. You may pay the exam fees online with a credit card. Please visit the APA store page to view the various examination fees. CPP Exam Fees

Note: The North America exam fees are available for selection only during specific Spring and Fall registration timeframes – please see the APA Certification Page or Candidate Handbook for current dates.

Q: Can I find out where there is a Pearson VUE testing center near my home or office?

A: Yes, you may lookup Pearson VUE testing centers, here.

Q: Can I view test center availability prior to paying or scheduling for the exam?

A: No. Test center availability varies on the test center location, hours, space and other factors as payroll exams are not the only exams given at the Pearson Vue Testing Centers. Test center availability is on a first-come-first-served basis. You must have a paid exam authorization from the APA prior to scheduling the exam.

Q: Where can I get this and other detailed information about the application process; what happens before, during, and after exam day?

A: All detailed information about the CPP certification program and examination can be found in the CPP Exam Candidate Handbook. The handbook includes information such as exam dates, fees, exam application process, cancellation/rescheduling policies, scoring information, certificate order, recertification process, and much more. The APA Certification Department strongly recommends that CPP candidates read the Candidate Handbook as part of their preparation for the examination. This information can also be found on the APA Certification Page.

Q: How long is my application valid?

A: Your application for the CPP exam is good for one year after its date of approval.

Q: After passing the exam, how soon do I receive my certificate and how can I order my lapel pin?

A: Within two weeks, APA will receive notification that you passed the exam. You will then receive a congratulatory email and instructions on how to order your certificate. At the same time of ordering your certificate, you may order your lapel pin. Instructions about how to order your certificate and lapel pin is also located at APA Certification Page. The steps are at the very bottom of the webpage.
